HIMVIA

Where the trade breaks down

A farmer customer with packed apples

Payment delays

Farmers often wait until the buyer pays. Delayed collections and defaults create pressure throughout the chain.

Supply consistency

Wholesale buyers need the right grades, quantities and packing across several suppliers.

Manual records

Calls, WhatsApp and paper records carry much of the work. Quality, dispatch and payments need to stay connected.

HIMVIA

Founder and operations

Swastik Sainseth

Sole founder | Managing grading and packing since 2024

Operational leadership

Managed 25+ seasonal workers and hired a manager to run daily grading and packing.

Buyer-specific packing

Introduced buyer-branded cartons and coordinated grading, packing and transport for wholesale orders.

Close to supply

Works with farmers and local brokers from a facility next to the fruit market.

HIMVIA

A wider network. Year-round produce.

Expansion across buyers, crops and sourcing regions

01

Deepen the apple business

Win more repeat wholesale buyers and grow direct supply through farmer and broker relationships.

02

Add crops and regions

Build shared buyer demand across new crop calendars, with grading and packing near farms.

03

National and export distribution

Develop fulfilment hubs, cold storage and refrigerated transport as order demand grows.

HIMVIA

Funding Himvia's next stage

Our first external investment will expand an operating business.

Buyer growth and direct supply

Win repeat wholesale buyers, support direct-supply orders and expand fulfilment capacity as demand grows.

Order tools and an expanded team

Build inventory, order and payment tools. Add sales and engineering support as operations grow.

Operating and currently unincorporated. Sole founder. No outside investment raised.
